

Poet's Corner

Ex-president Trump is a crooked old lump
And his presidency was never harmonious,
But his stocks have actually risen,
From the day the courts found him felonious,
And threatened with four years in prison
He's become even more acrimonious.
And pronounced his conviction 'erroneous'

Meanwhile, Joe Biden has been getting a hidin'
In the pre-nomination polls;
Sleepy Joe can be vague and tottery,
And those weird preselections defy sober reflections
And look far too much like a lottery,
Old Donald's still busy hiding pay-offs to molls,
But he's still riding high in opinion polls
And power-lust is Donald's besottery.

Most British PMs had reliable names;
Like Wilson and Blair, Cameron and May
While the Yanks copped the Roosevelts, Eisenhowers, even Obama,
When Afro-American Barak had his day,
But now, with Brits still adjusting to names Sunak and Rishi
Tall, dark and some would say dishy
They're bracing themselves for a Prime Minister Starmer
Sir Kier by name, and a bit of a charmer.

Down in Oz, poor old Minister Giles
Is in more strife than the dog with bleeding piles,
His Direction Ninety-Nine was a worrying sign
That Farmer Giles was inclined to be too benign
Towards immigrant crooks, crims and pedophiles
And making things tough for his boss, Albanese,
Who's beginning to look a little uneasy.
